WASHINGTON — Friends
enemies throughout the world today heard President
Roosevelt's promise to bomb Japan this year, to wage great sives against the Axis in Asia and Europe, and even to send powerful Allied forces marching triumphantly
through the streets of Berlin and Tokyo.

Available short-wave stations broadcasting his radio speeches shortly after he delivered the annual dinner of the House of Representatives assembled last night. The broadcast in more than 20 languages continued throughout the evening as a message of cheer and confidence to the Allied nations of the United Nations and as a message of doom to the Axis. President's address was filled with confidence and pitched theme of absolute victory and unconditional surrender of the Axis. It bristled with fighting words.

Important actions will be taken
which will drive out
the Axis into the sea.

Pressure on Germany Italy will be constant and ending.

DATE FIXED FOR SOIL PLAN VOTE

Richland Land Owners to Cast
Ballots Feb. 27 on Questions
Of Creating District.

Richland county land owners
will decide by referendum vote Saturday, Feb. 27, whether or not a soil conservation district will be established in the county.

Only owners of land outside incorporated villages will be allowed to ballot in the election which will be held between the hours of 2 and 9 p. m. at four polling places in the county.

Those unable to attend the election may obtain absentee ballots
upon proper application to County Agent George B. Ganyard.

Voting places will be in the Sher-
by town hall, the Shenandoah
community house, the Bellville town hall and the extension office in the courthouse.

The steering committee, named several months ago by county farmers set the date for the special election yesterday after they were informed of the approval of the state soil conservation committee to hold the referendum.

Supervision of the election will be by farmers named by the steering committee composed of A. L.
Lockhart, A. A. Mellick, H. C.
Snyder and A. W. Firestone.

'Clean Up' Squads Go Out to Finish Religious Census

With more than three-fourths of the city already registered, Mans-field's Religious Census moved towards completion today as "clean-up" squads were designated to reach all persons not previously contacted and workers were urged to submit completed reports at their respective churches Sunday morning.

The work of taking the census will be continued next week.
Ralph Stanton, general chairman said, to give workers delayed by inclement weather, an opportunity to complete their calling lists. The canvass will be expedited, Stanton said, if persons not previously reached would notify the census headquarters by calling 1634-6.

In issuing instructions for the remainder of the registration Stanton again urged workers to

FLIERS MISSING

Army Observation Plane Lost on Eastern Flight.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Two army
fliers, en route from Bradley Field, Windsor Locks, Conn., to Mitchell Field, N. Y., have been missing in an army observation
plane since Wednesday afternoon,
the eastern defense command and first army announced today.

The plane was estimated to have enough fuel for four and a half hours of flight at 4:30 p. m.
Wednesday. Army planes have been aloft along the projected route of the missing craft, without finding a trace of it.

Heroic Officer Amputates Wounded Man's Leg In Battle

By NOLAND NORGARD WITH U. S. FORCES ON THE TUNISIAN FRONT, Feb. 10 — (Delayed) — (AP) — Fighting in the first real battle he had ever seen, Lieut. Walton Goodwin of Richmond, Va., directed abandonment of his wrecked tank amputated a wounded comrade's leg with a pocket-knife and then carried the wounded man across a battlefield commanded by enemy machine guns.

Apparently even the Germans respected his courage for their machine guns ceased firing long enough for Goodwin to carry his burden to safety.

Goodwin's platoon of light tanks was well ahead of other United States units in last week's battle for Sened when two of the machines were knocked out by German anti-tank fire. Goodwin's own tank hit a mine and was wrecked.

Goodwin used smoke grenades to hide his movements from the enemy gunners and then remained behind, attempting to cover his crew with a machine gun while it ran to a nearby scout car. The others barely had reached the car when it was struck by a German mortar shell and two men were killed.

A third man managed to crawl 20 yards with his leg nearly severed.

Goodwin crawled through a rain of fire to the wounded man and decided the shattered leg had to be amputated before he could be removed from the field.

He shouted for a knife and Sergeant Alfred A. St. Germaine,
a full-blooded Sioux Indian from Cincinnati, Ohio, whose father served in the first world war, ignored enemy bullets to run across the field with a pocket knife.

From a first aid kit, Goodwin administered morphine and applied sulfanilamide to the wound and then amputated the leg. He put the wounded man on his shoulder and started to run for cover. Suddenly the German guns were silenced and fire was withheld until he had crossed the brow
of a hill and was out of range.

PLANE FOUND

Located Under 58 Feet of Water
In Narragansett Bay.

NEW YORK — (AP) — An army fighter plane, missing since Thursday on a flight from Providence,
R. I., to Groton, Conn., was located last night in 58 feet of water in the south end of Narragansett bay, the eastern defense command and first army announced today.

The plane, located in the bay,
was found after an all-day search by army aircraft, navy boats, civil air patrol planes and state police.
It was found by a navy crew at a point where an eight-mile current makes salvage work difficult. The pilot's body is believed to be still in the plane.

CITES NEED FOR STRONG PARTIES

Lincoln Day Speaker Declares
Free Men Must Get Chance
To Criticize Government.

Urging national unit of purpose in winning the war but not political unity, R. R. Bangham, manager of prison industries of the Ohio Welfare department, told a Lincoln day dinner audience in Mansfield last night that the country needs two strong parties to keep a check on each other.

Bangham, former state director of finance, spoke before nearly 250 Richland county Republicans at their annual observance of Lincoln's birthday at the First Methodist church.

"We can't have real national unity until we have political disunity, giving free men a chance to criticize what they believe is wrong with the government," he said. "Let's hope that the criticism of the party in office is fair, but we'd rather it be unfair than submit to autocratic oppression."

There will always be a free America, he said, as long as we follow the path blazed by Lincoln.

In these times the nation
needs the memory of great men like Lincoln. His character has been absorbed into the character of the country. His faith and spiritual strength became a beacon light during the troubled days of the Civil war.

Bangham called for sacrifice
at home equal to that of the men at the front, adding that the nation's first duty is to wage a victorious war.

Jacob Garber, Butler, the county's leading Lincoln authority, described the Emancipator's Civil war days and the spiritual stamina
he showed in meeting the problems of the war.

MORE SNOW DUE

Weatherman Says It'll Also Be Colder Tonight.

More cold and more snow are promised for Mansfield in the week-end weather menu dished up by Ohio's forecaster who issued this prediction. "Colder tonight with snow flurries"

After yesterday's sun revived
thoughts of victory gardens, Mansfield awoke today to a snowfall which measured two and one-half inches at noon. During the night, temperatures dropped to moderate temperatures,
the large-flaked snow became mushy
in traffic rather than icy. No accidents were reported up to noon today.

Lowest temperature during the 24-hour period ending at noon was 19, with a high of 29 and an average of 24, as compared to an 18-year level of 23.2. At noon the mercury stood at 22 above zero.

Whole Southern Front Crumbles As Troops Flee

Russians Pour Down on Rostov From
Two Directions, Advance to Point
18 Miles From Kharkov; Enemy
Stand at Donets River Fails.

BULLETIN
NEW YORK — (AP) — The CBS correspondent in Moscow said today that the Germans were reported setting fire to the entire city of Rostov. The British radio declared "Rostov is being rapidly enveloped and Germans are attempting to get away to the westward."

(By United Press)
MOSCOW — A great German army in the Donets basin faced the prospect of being trapped today as Russian forces threatened to break the two bolts that held together the Axis defense line—Rostov and Kharkov.

(In London, military observers said "the whole southern Russian front is crumbling and Axis troops are now in full retreat." It was unlikely, the observers said, that the Germans even would be able to make a stand along the line of the Dnieper river.)

The Russians were last reported to be only 18 miles away from Kharkov, the Soviet Republic's fourth city and center point of the southern front defense line. Northeast of Rostov the Red army had smashed through Axis defenses and was pouring down toward the city from both the northeast and north.

(The London observers said that eventually they expected a slow down in the Russian advance because it is impossible for an army to continue at that rate "without taking a breath." There is no indication that the Germans have had time to fortify the Dnieper line, it was said, and as of now it was impossible to forecast how far west the Germans will be forced to retreat before making a stand.)

Suddenly intensifying the drive
on Kharkov, Russia's fourth city, from the southeast, where last they had been reported less than 18 miles away after taking Chuguyev, Red army tanks tipped
through the German defense line
to capture two big inhabited places, the noon communique reported.

Between Kharkov and Rostov,
where by taking Krasnoarme-yskye 80 miles east of the Dnieper river, the Russians had severed almost the last railroad means of escape for the Germans in the Donets basin.

The Russians driving on Rostov from northeast and north advanced to occupy several inhabited localities in overnight and morning fighting after taking the important railroad town of Shakhty, 40 miles north-northeast of the city, and Kri-vynskaya, 20 miles to the northeast, in yesterday's fighting.

The capture of Rostov was brought measurably nearer when the Russians drove through the German defenses west of the Donets river in the northeast-Rostov zone.

The enemy had tried to make a stand on the west bank of the Donets, at a point about 70 miles northeast of Rostov, the noon communique reported. Thrown from the river by Russian shock troops, the Germans hastily organized new positions.

In a sudden dawn attack the Russians went over the top,
smashed the enemy defense line

SUMMARY: Japs Admit Loss of 7 Warships, Claim 8 Sinkings

(By Associated Press)
A Japanese Imperial headquarters communique broadcast by the Tokyo radio today said Japan had suffered the loss of seven warships and damage to six in the fighting off the Solomons and New Guinea since Aug. 7, 1942, while Allied forces lost eight sunk and eight damaged "which have not been previously announced."

(A tabulation of reports of Japanese and American losses in the period Aug. 7-Feb. 6 as given in communiqués issued in Washington, showed that the enemy had lost 57 ships of all types sunk, seven probably sunk and 102 damaged plus 797 planes destroyed in combat. American losses by these same reports were shown as 28 ships sunk with the number of damaged vessels and the total of plane losses never having been disclosed.

(These loss figures, being based only on communiqués, do not include any of the damage suffered by both sides in the battling which broke out about Jan. 29, since that has not been reported by the navy in Washington.

(In the Solomons, the navy
communiqués showed, the Japs
have had at least one battleship sunk, another battleship or heavy cruiser also sunk and two battleships, as well as at least one aircraft carrier, badly damaged. American forces lost the aircraft carriers Wasp and Hornet
in the Solomons fighting.)

lated on Page 10, Col. 1.

REUNION: Meeting of Yanks Signals Guadalcanal Victory

EDITOR'S NOTE: A dispatch by Robert C. Miller, who covered both the start and conclusion of the battle for Guadalcanal, is an account of the meeting of the two leaders of the two American columns which crushed final Japanese resistance on Feb. 9.

By ROBERT C. MILLER
(UP Staff Correspondent)
WITH THE AMERICAN
FORCES IN GUADALCANAL,
Feb. 9 — (Delayed) — Two bearded men, their uniforms caked with mud, advanced cautiously toward each other through an abandoned cocoa plantation today, saluted and clasped hands in a reunion that signaled the end of land fighting on Guadalcanal.

It was the reunion of two American forces which had driven the last vestige of Japanese resistance from the northwestern tip of Guadalcanal in the first all-American victory of the war in the Pacific.

Leading the forces moving from the west, Maj. Elmer Butler, 45-year-old Springfield, Ill., national guardsman, greeted Lieut.
Col. James Dalton, Burlington, Vt., pushing westward with his battle-begrimed troops.

"I'm damn glad to see you, Col."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1943.

People throughout the world will not be content to return to a narrow nationalism—a dog-eat-dog existence—but will demand a world of freedom, lasting peace and equal opportunity in which to live decently, work decently and earn a decent livelihood.—Herbert H. Lehman.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and if you're running short of gas maybe you'd better not drive at all.

The idea seems to be that Louisville can have the Kentucky Derby this year, if it is kept confidential.

Nazi officers were instructed to bring the population of Stalingrad back to Germany—but it seems to be the Russian armies that are headed in that direction.

Time for Economy, Not Extravagance

AS THE record of expenditures of public money by the Bricker administration is being more closely scrutinized, in advance of approval by the legislature of Governor Bricker's current budget requests, it is disclosed that his has been the most costly administration in the history of the state—and that he now proposes to spend considerably more in the next two years than in the past two.

Much has been said about the surplus of $45,500,000 that has been accumulated in the state treasury, and which it is now proposed to use up in meeting extravagant expenditures of the next two years.

The impression has been given by the governor that this surplus was built up through economical handling of taxpayers' money—WHEN, IN FACT, IT ACCRUED FROM UNNECESSARILY HEAVY TAXATION AND REFUSAL TO ALLOT A FAIR PROPORTION OF SALES TAX REVENUES TO RELIEF-BURDENED CITIES AND SMALLER SUBDIVISIONS.

Two years ago, for budget-making purposes, Governor Bricker "conservatively" estimated there would be a surplus slightly above $46,000 in the general revenue fund on December 31, 1942, but this grew from THOUSANDS of dollars into almost the same number of MILLIONS—indicating how "conservative" the estimate really was.

Now Governor Bricker is asking for $366,028,921, for the 1943-44 period, or $21,387,000 more than he spent in 1941-42—and again he says that estimates of probable collections from taxes are "conservative"—which, if accepted as reasonable, leaves the legislature little leeway for cutting . . . which was the apparent purpose of the overly conservative estimates of two years ago.

Worth pondering is the report of the municipal research bureau of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce to the effect that state expenditures under Governor Bricker had reached $70,000,000 more a year than under his immediate predecessor, Martin L. Davey, who was frequently under fire on complaints of extravagance in the conduct of state business.

Any thought that the climbing costs of state government can be blamed on war-time emergencies, proposed pay increases for state employees or the need for post-war planning is upset by the New York state situation, where the newly installed governor, Thomas L. Dewey, submitted a budget asking for appropriations $11,900,000 LOWER than those of last year—despite increases to lower-paid state employees.

Federal demands for more and more taxes to meet war costs may be at least partly responsible for the state-wide interest that has been aroused in Governor Bricker's record-breaking budget, and for demands that state taxes be reduced, if possible, rather than that extravagant administrative policies be permitted to continue, or another needlessly large surplus built up.

Prefer Continuance of War Time

THE ATTITUDE expressed by the Mansfield Retail Merchants association, in recommending retention of War time, seems to reflect majority public opinion in this community, judging from many openly stated views on the subject.

It is noted that the resolution adopted by the retailers' group says that, "Inasmuch as our federal government has asked the country to accept War time as an emergency war measure and we have adjusted ourselves to that time, our association recommends that War time be continued."

In addition to sending the recommendation to Governor Bricker, this also becomes a local expression of views on the desirability of retaining a uniform time standard in Mansfield, in event the governor signs the time-change bill. Most insistent of arguments here is that if a change is to be made it should be done at the approach of winter months rather than now—which would also allow time for consideration by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the request that the line between Eastern and Central time zones be changed so as to place Ohio and similarly situated states in the Central zone. This would eliminate the confusion bound to result if two time standards become operative in the state.

Brazil Gaining Importance

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S recent visit to Brazil will benefit this country greatly if it calls general attention to Brazil's size and importance.

Americans think of their own country as the greatest on earth. So it is in many ways, but not in area. China is larger, and Russia considerably so. Canada is also larger and, if Alaska is excluded, so is Brazil.

The coffee shortage is a straight-from-the-stomach reminder of the importance of this huge South American neighbor. Much of our country's natural rubber hereafter is likely to come from Brazil instead of Malaya. And so various are largely undeveloped Brazilian resources that our commerce with her is likely to bulk larger as time goes on.

The population is still scanty, only 41,000,000 according to 1935 census, or not one third as many as the United States; but it will grow. By all standards of wisdom this country would do well by continuing to cultivate the friendship of Brazil.

Maybe the reason Nazis are not denying the rumor of Hitler's death is because they want to see if anything good will be said about him.

Allies Planning Surprise for Foes

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

REVELATION of the size of the Allied expeditionary force in North Africa gives an indication of the scale on which the United Nations are preparing to operate against the Axis, and also an idea of the magnitude of the task involved in an invasion of Europe.

That the cleaning up of Africa is merely preliminary to invasion of the continent goes without saying. Immediately after Prime Minister Churchill's speech in which he promised wide offensive operations in the next nine months, an authoritative spokesman in London told the press, "we are going to land on the continent this year, but where will be a surprise."

The final battle for North Africa is only now shaping up. The Allies have needed time to organize communications and supplies, while the weather makes large-scale operations impossible at present. It may be several weeks before the real battle starts.

Allied leaders concede that it is going to be a hard fight but have no doubt of the outcome. Churchill revealed that 500,000 men were landed in North Africa. This presumably does not include Gen. Sir B. L. Montgomery's Eighth army.

Against them are arrayed an estimated 250,000 Axis troops penned in northeastern Tunisia. The Allies certainly appear to have the men to do the job. If more are needed, they undoubtedly can and will be sent.

When the Germans and Italians have been driven out of Tunisia, the Allies will be in a position to consolidate control of the entire Mediterranean. When that is completed, invasion of southern Europe would be possible, if that is part of Allied strategy.

Southern France, Italy, Yugoslavia and Greece have been mentioned as possible points of attack.

Hitler's hasty attempts to build defenses in southern Europe and the Balkans shows he realizes the danger, but he can't tell where the blow will fall and he has a lot of territory to cover. Thus it would be impossible to build anything like the heavy fortifications of northwestern France.

The Allies also might strike at several points in the Mediterranean at the same time. Should the main drive be in the central part of the sea, a diversionary attack could be made, for instance, against Crete and Greece. The British Ninth and Tenth armies would be available for such an operation.

Wherever the Allies strike, whether in Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium or France, they are going to have a tremendous shipping and supply problem to overcome, because any invasion must cross water.

THE CHANGE of time is likely to be settled. The state legislature has voted to set Ohio clocks back one whole hour, beginning soon. And as one farmer expressed it to me, "For a good sensible agricultural state like Ohio to make a fool of itself is what I call too bad!"

No more does the school bus come down the road, of mornings, with headlights on, nor do our school children dress and eat their breakfast by the oil lamp. It is daylight now and streaks of sunrise show above the wooded hills before the orange bus lumbers into view. Every farm family is busy at the house and barn just as it should be. Wartime, from now on through the summer would be a decided advantage to every farmer. Thrifty tillers of the soil work with the sun and man-made time rules only can confuse and make his operations difficult. Why, now that natural daylight has caught up with wartime, should legislators make it a confusing hour slower?

This interferes with marketing of farm produce. Milk, especially, must arrive on city schedule and the late hour gouges heavily into the farmer's forenoon. The draft has taken away much of his skilled help; his gasoline, his tires, his rubber footwear is rationed; repairs for his machinery are not made any more, or out of stock in the supply stores.

He is supposed, in 1943 to raise more food than in any previous year. Yet part of his day is needlessly wasted, and his high school children who might be skilled help in the fields, will return an hour later in the afternoon, and thus cut short his day at both ends. For the part-time farmer, who counts on working on his own time at a Victory garden, or in his fields, the setback of slow time will be a calamity. Long hours of labor, unbroken by diversions, are necessary for a farmer to complete his task.

Farmers of our valley have looked forward to the long afternoons of April and May when their children could help with their planting until the last moments of twilight—out in the fields with team and tractor. Cheap labor from the mountains of Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and the Carolinas will not replace lost hours with our modern tools and methods. And the accustomed wages of city people and the comparatively short hours will be far more than a farmer can afford to pay. Wisely, in many, many cases, he profits more by planting only what he and his own folks can harvest by themselves.

Although a man may acknowledge that he has faults he seldom owns up to those his friends accuse him of.

FARM FURLONGS—THINK THEM OVER. Splendid notion—this idea that we shall be the "world's democracy." But do you want to depend for your buckwheat cakes on your barber? Darned if I do!

Summary of Week's Happenings

Rostov Again Becomes Key Point As Great Russian Gains Continue

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

SYMBOL of Russian courage and determination is the Russian Caucasus city of Rostov, springboard for the great Soviet winter offensive of 1941-42. It was the Germans' surrender of that city, after holding it for only a week, that sparked the Russians in their heavy counter-attacks over the long front through the winter months.

During the week, Rostov again became a key point in another massive Soviet offensive. But this time, the Germans were in real trouble. Where they were able a year ago to stop the Russians short of the strongly fortified positions of Bryansk, Rzhnev and Vyazma, the defenses now appeared to be crumbling all along the line.

Rostov, which the Germans again captured during the summer drive, was caught in the Soviet net, but this time it was only one of several vital points in the path of the amazing Red juggernaut.

By midweek, Kursk and Belgorod, German bastions and rail centers, had fallen to the Russians and spearheads were aiming toward Kharkov, Rzhnev, Orel. Russian communiques told again and again of Stalin's soldiers hammering back German counter-attacks and continuing their advances.

Berlin was strangely silent, failed even to offer the usual explanation of "strategic withdrawals."

From Stalingrad came additional stories of the magnificent defense of the city—now turned into a mass of wreckage, a ghastly cemetery for German soldiers.

Correspondents found a few houses standing, none at all with roofs intact. The streets are littered with the frozen bodies of dead Germans; inside the wreckage of buildings are the bodies of thousands more, German prisoners, many ill or wounded, prowl around the ruins. The onetime model industrial center—which American engineers helped build—is a heap of rubbish.

At Home

Surprise!

Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes sprang shoe rationing as a surprise last Sunday afternoon, but it didn't prevent runs on stores in Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City, New Orleans, Columbus. Some shoemen closed their doors when they heard of the order; others raked in the cash until the OPA threatened prosecution.

Thus, in sharp contrast to the advance announcement on the rationing of canned and frozen fruits and vegetables, the government, during the week started limiting shoe purchases by its civilians.

"... It is the ideal rationing plan," happily bubbled OPA Director Prentiss Brown. "For the first time in these fast-moving days we have been able to get on top of a situation before it got on top of us. The plan is simple and the ration is more than liberal."

How to Relax.

The honeymoon that a job in the fabulous Jack & Heintz, Inc., war plane parts plant in Cleveland, Ohio, seems to be, is not over. It is going to begin this summer when employees ("associates" to J. & H.) take expense-paid vacations at Harbor (Honeycomb) Island in Georgian Bay, 25 miles off Tampa, Fla.

Eleven company-leased cottages at Fort Lauderdale were too few, so the company rented Harbor Island and its 50 thatched-roof cottages. In groups of 100, each

Quotes

Everett Case, president of Colgate university: "The future of America will depend not only on the victory of our arms, but on the attitude and spirit of the American people as a whole."

Author Pearl S. Buck, on the subject of wartime hate: "It is idle, it seems to me, to speculate upon the necessity to hate or not hate. When war lays upon us its dark compulsion to kill as many as we can, the only question for each man to face is how best he can accomplish his own share of the awful task."

to the house foreign affairs committee considering an extension of lend-lease agreements:

"We must disarm Japan on the sea after the war, and keep her disarmed for a long time afterward." To do this, Knox suggested a chain of naval and air bases across the Pacific, an arrangement he agreed would require "some statesmanship."

In support of lend-lease, the Secretary disclosed the navy's transfer to foreign nations: 285 ships, 151 small craft with a value of $127,000,000, said the program aided the U. S. as well as its allies.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON The Capital in Wartime:

No statistical data of any importance on the subject is available here yet, but one of the best labor stories of this war is the opportunities being provided the physically handicapped—the legless, armless, deaf, dumb and blind—to contribute to the war effort.

The one figure that gives some indication of what is happening is that civil service has taken on more than 2,000 physically handicapped persons since the United States entered the war.

The blind are dictaphone typists, operators of punch card and other machines, inspectors. Deaf and dumb persons are typists and operators of all types of calculating and tabulating machines. Chauffeurs and truck drivers with one arm or an artificial leg are not uncommon.

At the same time, stories are drifting into Washington from many states that almost complete departments of war factories produce outstanding labor with physically handicapped labor.

When the department of labor gets all the facts on this, it may provide one of the real human interest stories of war on the home front.

ALL the upsets in the last November elections didn't upset the fact that a law degree still is the best passport to congress. Far more than half—297 members—put their feet on the political ladder after admission to the bar. There are 232 legal lights in the house and 63 in the senate.

There are seven doctors in the house, but none in the senate, although the latter has one optometrist.

The second largest professional aggregation in congress is composed of business men; the third of publishers, editors and reporters. Bankers have one representative in the senate, 12 in the house. There's a sprinkling of farmers and stockmen on both sides of the Capitol.

THAT old storm center of more than one legislative ruckus, daylight saving time, now called wartime, is in for another going over.

Rep. Walter E. Brehm, of Ohio, brought it up but there still is plenty of opposition to keeping the clocks an hour ahead of standard time and Congressman Brehm has appealed for help to repeal it. "If I read the times aright, and if as we are told, food will win the war, then it seems to me increased production is more essential to the war effort than the saving of a few kilowatt hours, though you will first have to prove that it actually does save power before I will concede that point," he said.

There it is again, the old fight between the farmers and the industrialists over changing the face of the clock to make it read one more hour of day-shift sunlight. The idea around Washington had been that the daylight saving scrap was dead and buried for the duration.

Daily Bible Thought

I am Jehovah thy God that brought thee out of the house of bondage.—Exodus 20:2.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"I'll say your mother is outspoken . . . but not by anyone I know."

Abroad

In-Laws Fall Out.

During the week Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, was back in the news, central figure in an unexplained shakeup of the Italian cabinet. Ciano lost his job (along with old-line Fascist Dino Grandi, former ambassador to Great Britain) and wound up as ambassador to the Vatican.

Snap reaction of observers was that Ciano, reported estranged from his wife, had become a political scape-goat, perhaps to be blamed for some of the Italian blunders. Longer reflection, however, led some others to believe that he might be the spearhead for an Italian peace offensive.

As Italian contact man at the Vatican, he would be able to meet and talk with envoys of the United Nations. Thus, some reasoned, he could explain Italy's position, perhaps arrange to ease that unhappy country out of the war.

End of a Traitor.

Memories of Lidice, the little Czech village "erased" by the Germans as punishment for the assassination of Reinhardt Heydrich, came to Hollanders last week.

Outside the doorway of his home in The Hague, 70-year old Lt. Gen. Hendrick Alexander Seyffardt, Holland's only traitor-general, had fallen to an assassin's bullet, even as he prepared to carry out an order for the organization of a Dutch army to fight the Russians. Two and a half years before, he had aligned himself with the Nazis when they invaded the Netherlands.

Guadalcanal Clean-Up.

Routing the remaining Japs on Guadalcanal island was announced this week.

American forces, Navy Secretary Knox said, now are "within striking distance of some of the most important bases of the Japanese. . . . The Southwest Pacific would have been a vastly different story for the last three or four months if we had not established our position in the Solomons."

Jap-built Henderson Airfield on Guadalcanal from which Flying Fortresses now take off to blast Rabaul, Bougainville Island and the Munda air base on New Georgia Island, may serve the Allies offensively in many ways.

In Short

Planned: By OPA, the removal of ration board control over sale of tire recaps made from reclaimed rubber.

Confirmed: By the senate, the nomination of Wiley B. Rutledge as the ninth member of the Supreme Court.

Rejected: For army duty, Brooklyn's Dan Lauri, 19, swimming star, weight-lifter and recently named "most muscular man in America," because of "an over-taxed heart."

Born: To Pacific air hero Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. Edward (Butch) O'Hare, a daughter, Kathleen, in St. Louis; to Sgt. and Mrs. Joe Louis (Barrow), a daughter, in Chicago.

Died: At Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Louis Weitzenkorn, 49, editor and playwright ("Five Star Final") of burns and suffocation, suffered accidentally; At Los Angeles, Dr. A. H. Giannini, physician-banker financier for the motion picture industry; At Washington, Daniel M. Casey, 80, who claimed to be the original "Casey at the Bat."

THE BOY FROM MAINE

By Katharine Brush
(Copyright 1943)

CHAPTER XXVIII

She had worked in Boston, hough—first in a candy shop and later in the ticket seller's booth of a movie theater on Washington street. "I did that up to yesterday," she said. "but I got sick of it. So I had ten bucks saved up and I thought I'd come down to New York and see you. Just got in at 10 o'clock tonight."

"And where's your baggage," Hobe said, "if any? Did you take a room somewhere, or did you come straight here, or what?"

It was as he had thought. Bonnie's only home at the moment was one suitcase checked at Grand Central, and her only money was the balance of the ten dollars with which she had bought her railroad ticket.

Hobe said, "Had any dinner?"

"No."

"Then that's the first thing you stay here," he said, "and I'll be back."

He ordered her some soup and sandwiches and coffee, to be brought in to his dressing room in a tray. He left her eating ravenously, and went out to play his second show. When he came back he found her fast asleep on the couch.

She had taken her hat off, and her shoes, and the absurd monkey-cape. Her loosened hair was spread over the cushion, and her face looked pale and innocent and very, very young. Looking at her, Hobe felt the first stirrings of a pitying compunction that was to motivate his conduct towards her. After all, he thought, this poor Bonnie was his fault, in a sort of way. If he had never one to the island, she might never have left it. Certainly she couldn't have turned up drunk in New York, expecting him to help her. He thought of the whole chain of events between, and he didn't like any of it, and all of it seemed to be his fault, in the time inescapable, basic way. He had talked to her too much; he had been too sympathetic a listener—and then at the last he had shown her too clearly that men were easy. And now here she was, and something had to be done; and he was elected.

He stepped out of the room, closing the door behind him quietly so as not to wake her, and went into Ruby's dressing room across the hall. Ruby was removing her make-up and preparing to go home. "You, Totty," Hobe said to her colorfully, "you go it a minute, will you? I want to talk to the boss."

"Since when have I any secrets from Totty?" Ruby said, as the door closed. "Or you either, as far as that goes. What's the matter, Hobe?" she asked, seeing his expression. "Trouble?"

"Plenty."

"You look it."

He told her the whole story, which he was never to tell Rosalie. Ruby made no comment, except to say at the end, "One of these days we're going to get the whole state of Maine down here. Never saw anything like it. Well, but where is she? Let's have a look at her."

"She's asleep in my dressing room."

Ruby went across and looked at the unconscious Bonnie. "My God," she said, "is that her own hair?"

"It always was."

"The make-up is a little Minsky," Ruby said, "and so're the clothes. But you're right about the beauty. It's all there."

They closed the door, and went back across to Ruby's dressing room again. "She'll probably sleep till we wake her," Ruby said. "So let her. I'll be leaving in a little while and I'll take her home with me for tonight—and tomorrow we can see what to do."

He woke in the morning with a vague sense of depression which it took him a minute to identify. Then, waking fully, he knew what it was; and he went over to Ruby's as soon as he was dressed. He would have his breakfast there, and see how things were.

Ruby still wasn't awake when he arrived, but Bonnie had been up and dressed for hours, deep in a flirtation with an unemployed vaudeville hooper named Kendall. Both of them were drinking beer. Bonnie said she had been up since seven o'clock, and she looked at Hobe reproachfully and remarked that she'd thought he would never come. "I didn't know what to do with myself," she complained, and then added elegantly, "but then this gentleman joined me."

"We've had a very interesting time," said Kendall, arching one eyebrow at Hobe. "Miss Roberts tells me she's going to be a chorus girl."

"Oh, is she?" Hobe said.

"Well, aren't I?" Bonnie demanded. "Aren't you and Miss Mallory going to give me a job?"

"Possibly," Hobe said. "Possibly. But try not to rush us, will you. I mean—let's at least wait till Miss Mallory comes downstairs."

That was the way it was, however. It was all decided before

BOOK REVIEW HEARD BY COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

"Mrs. Parkington" Reviewed at Club Tea By Mrs. F. J. Schuster; Young Mansfield Pianist Presents Program.

A REVIEW of "Mrs. Parkington," by Louis Bromfield, was the highlight of the Cosmopolitan club, Friday afternoon, when the club met at the home of Mrs. F. T. Wendt, 583 Andover road. The interesting review of the book was presented by Mrs. F. J. Schuster.

"Mrs. Parkington" is the story of an elderly lady, and the various women in her family. The setting is Park avenue, and the time is right after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

Mrs. G. W. Hall, who assisted Mrs. Wendt as hostess, introduced Lynn Decker, a Mansfield pianist, who presented several piano selections. In his program, young Mr. Decker included "Pastoral" by Scarlatti, "Waltz in E Minor" by Chopin, "Three Preludes" by Gershwin and "Malaguena."

Mrs. V. H. Lode presided over the business meeting during which members voted to give $5 to the Red Cross War Fund. Tea was served from a table with Valentine appointments. Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine poured.

"Living Religions of the Old World" will be presented at the Feb. 26 meeting, by Mrs. C. O. Russell. Mrs. H. T. Seneff will present poems. That meeting will be in the form of a tea at the home of Mrs. F. F. Forshee, 539 Maple street. Assisting Mrs. Forshee will be Mrs. W. T. Marquis.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS. Election of officers was held recently by the Prospect Park auxiliary. Mrs. Roy Vaughan was named president, Mrs. Carl Kuntz vice president, secretary, Mrs. W. F. Shupp, assistant secretary.

Mrs. R. N. Varney, treasurer, Mrs. Cyril Hartman, reporter, Mrs. Gerald Wagner, trustees, Mrs. Glenn Collins and Mrs. Norman Kellogg, membership committee, Mrs. Stanley Harper, Mrs. William Kellogg and Mrs. Walter DeVore. Bridge and pinocle was played. Mrs. Darl Stoffer won the bridge prize and the prize in pinocle was won by Mrs. John Hill. The next meeting will be March 8.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"Why an accident? Why not an illness?" my father asked.

"For two reasons," I said with assurance. "Mary is a wonderful actress, but to feign the symptoms of a serious illness for days on end would be a terrible burden. I doubt, too, that she could deceive Noel, or Olga and Olina, and I take it you do not wish them to know about it."

"No, I do not, see your point. It will have to be an accident. Have you decided what kind?"

"A very bad sprain, involving the leg tendons I think," I said, and my father nodded his approval.

"That will keep her confined to her apartment," he said, "and Dr. Twitche'll will be able to make an artistic job of a cast and bandages."

"But she will need a nurse," I said, "if the deception is to be kept up."

"What is the matter with Katharine?" my father asked quietly.

"Katharine?" I repeated joyously. "You mean—"

Katharine Coming. "That she will arrive here tonight before you are due at the farewell party to Georges," my father explained. "I sent word for her to return, with the same men who took Lillian and Miss Whitlock out to the farm."

"Oh, how wonderful!" I exclaimed. With Katharine to help me, I no longer dreaded the task of manipulating an accident to Mary.

"I thought she was to stay out there for a few days," I said.

"I thought I could let her," he said, "but as events have shaped themselves, I feared I might need her within reach. I did not anticipate this particular need, but her coming will fit in very well."

"It will be perfect," I said, then fell silent.

"I told you that you would have plenty of time for planning the accident," he said, "but have you thought yet of any plausible scheme?"

"No, I haven't," I answered, "and I now think I'll wait for Katharine. She has been so closely associated with accidents that she ought to be able to plan one."

"No doubt she will," my father said rather absently, and I saw that his mind was already busy.

"You have been most helpful today, my dear daughter," he said.

"When Halloran said he thought the man planning to impersonate Georges was an actor, the thought of Redfield hazily crossed my mind but your intuition was quick and sure. And you acted on it so effectively that I now have Redfield in the hollow of my hand."

He opened and closed his hand as he spoke, and the old phrase brought me relief from terror.

"As yet," he went on, "we have only one direct proof of Redfield's connection with this gang of conspirators—his secreting the document Milner abstracted from his shoe last night, which they both believe genuine instead of a substitute I planted for them. However, I cannot use that against him until the whole conspiracy is solved, but when he goes to that bank, presents forged signatures and draws out money by using the name and semblance of Georges, Redfield, he will be playing right into my hand."

"It will be a sort of unholy blackmail," he added with a useful smile, "but you can't handle rattlesnakes if you play a fair game with them, and I hope this hold I have on Redfield will enable me to find the nest where his fellow reptiles are coiled."

Before he could explain his meaning further, a knock at the door interrupted him.

"I imagine that is the bank official," he said. "He has made good time."

Life, Liberty and Right to Slacks

(Wide World Features)

California girls are using the war to put over the right to wear slacks to work. Though they've won a silk-stocking-saving victory in two major state departments they ran up against a rock wall in Mayor Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles.

"Let us fight our enemies with all our power," says Bowron, "but let's do it wearing our own clothes."

Ginger Allen of San Francisco's La Fiesta club, who resents unnecessary stocking expense as much as the next wage earner, puts the problem in pictures:

1.—One run and a $1.25 pair of hose is ruined. "When you stick your knees under a desk it's the same as putting five quarters in a slot machine," she says. "Soon or later you're going to lose 'em."

2.—Bobby socks and sports shoes are comfortable, though shabby.

3.—Slacks solve the stocking problem, allow freedom of movement.

4.—If shortages continue, shorts may be the logical attire for office wear.

Penny Wise Says:

To revive shabby leather upholstery, wash with a cloth wrung out in warm water to which a dash of vinegar has been added.

Then restore the polish by rubbing with a mixture of whites of two eggs, beaten up with a little turpentine. Presto! It's new again!

Such economies will help win the war, if you pledge your budget savings each month to buy War Savings Stamps and Bonds.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, February 14.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguries of the most propitious, pleasant and profitable conditions in all forms of activity and aspiration. It is a day of enjoying intellectual and professional interchange, with emphasis on the affectional or conjugal. Possible engagement or marriage celebrations are in order.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of progress and advancement. The young and romantic may enjoy the blessings of good Saint Valentine.

A child born on this day may be gifted with many social graces, much personal popularity and magnetism, winning the favors of those in high places.

For Monday, February 15.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is fairly propitious for business and personal affairs. Swift anticipation of traps and betrayal will assist in putting affairs on a secure and sound basis.

Those whose birthday it is may win over trickery, duplicity and many undercurrents of enmity and snares by quick action, keen insight and ingenuity. They must be alert to signs of duplicity in both social and business affairs.

A child born on this day may have much originality and sagacity, sustained by deep insight and shrewdness. This may enable it to defeat treachery, intrigue and subtlety in both public and private life.

West managed to make an extra trick, losing only one in clubs and one in hearts, scoring by a tremendous margin over the East-West pair at the other table.

Where West doubled the 1-Diamond and it got played at that contract an extra trick was scored. South managed to take five tricks with diamonds, plus two in clubs and one in hearts. It will be a long time before West doubles again with that kind of a hand. He will bid either a minimum amount of one suit, or one more than necessary in it if his hand is strong enough.

Mrs. Creamer Honored at Party

The first of a series of parties for Mrs. Thomas Creamer, the former Miss Martha Gerstmeier, was given Friday evening by her sister, Mrs. R. C. Straub, 437 Harker street.

Guests played bridge and hearts at four tables. Prizes in bridge were won by Miss Grace Crotty and Mrs. G. E. Kalbfleisch. Hearts score gifts were won by Mrs. Reno Cicolani and Mrs. John Korn. Winners of prizes presented them to the honoree.

At a late hour, luncheon was served from a buffet table attractively decorated in a color scheme of orchid and yellow. The beautiful centerpiece was an arrangement of spring flowers in orchid and yellow. Four tall lighted orchid and yellow tapers illuminated the table.

Another in the series of parties for Mrs. Creamer has been scheduled for Tuesday evening. That affair will be given at the home of Mrs. Peter Creamer, jr., Coleman road. Mrs. Robert Creamer will serve as associate hostess.

Mrs. John Korn was the only out-of-town guest last night.

Guild Observes Annual Dinner

The St. John's guild held its 19th anniversary dinner in the church parlors Wednesday noon at which Miss Bertha Ruess and Rev. Paul Saleste gave informative talks.

Miss Ruess how much an organization can accomplish where there is loyal co-operation between the members and their officers in all of its responsibilities.

Rev. Saleste explained how an organization could make mistakes and should gain by facing errors in order to be of greater service to itself and mankind. Scripture reading was by Mrs. Lena Fisher.

Two contests were won by Mrs. W. B. Cider and Mrs. H. R. Fiedler. They received War Stamps as prizes.

The next meeting, Feb. 24, will be in charge of Mrs. Emma Smith. Mrs. Bertha Schroeder, Mrs. Joannette Schmidt and Mrs. Paul Saleste.

START CARD TOURNAMENT. At the Daughters of Isabella meeting Tuesday night, in the club rooms of the Bird building, Mrs. Cutter talked on "Share the Ride" program. Plans were made by the social committee to hold a benefit party the last Thursday of the month. The next meeting will be a social committee session in the club rooms, Feb. 23. Mrs. Charles Whisler will be the chairlady. After the meeting the first round of play in the card tournament was held, which was won by Mrs. G. C. Wehinger. Auction prize was won by Mrs. R. C.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHEN NOT TO DOUBLE

EXCEPT WHEN the opponents have shown two suits and you want your partner to bid one of the others, a takeout double is had business with a two-suit, no matter how strong your hand is. If the partner of the original suit bidder has a good fit with a centrally weak hand, he may jump the bidding so high you don't dare show one of your suits then unless you have already shown the other. Furthermore, a double with a two-suit may be disastrous if your partner, loaded with the opponents' suit, makes a business pass, for penalties.

How much better and sounder West was at the second table. With a suit overall of one more than necessary showing a probable two-suit of about information and a suit of at least five cards. East had no problem at all. As he said later, even if North had cut in with a bid of 3-Clubs over the 2-Spades, he would have bid 3-Spades anyway, as from his own distribution he could tell the trump suit was safe and his partner's other suit was probably hearts, in which he had useful shortage.

West managed to make an extra trick, losing only one in clubs and one in hearts, scoring by a tremendous margin over the East-West pair at the other table.

Where West doubled the 1-Diamond and it got played at that contract an extra trick was scored. South managed to take five tricks with diamonds, plus two in clubs and one in hearts. It will be a long time before West doubles again with that kind of a hand. He will bid either a minimum amount of one suit, or one more than necessary in it if his hand is strong enough.

Your Week-End Lesson. Why do the finest players seldom make a pre-emptive jump to game heights as an overcall after an opponent has opened the auction with a bid of another suit?

At the Daughters of Isabella meeting Tuesday night, in the club rooms of the Bird building, Mrs. Cutler talked on "Share the Ride" program. Plans were made by the social committee to hold a benefit party the last Thursday of the month. The next meeting will be a social committee session in the club rooms, Feb. 23. Mrs. Charles Whisler will be the chair-lady. After the meeting the first round of play in the card tournament was held, which was won by Mrs. G. C. Wehinger. Auction prize was won by Mrs. R. C.

Penny Wise Says:

To revive shabby leather upholstery, wash with a cloth wrung out in warm water to which a dash of vinegar has been added. Then restore the polish by rubbing with a mixture of whites of two eggs, beaten up with a little turpentine. Presto! It's new again! Such economies will help win the war, if you pledge your budget savings each month to buy War Savings Stamps and Bonds.

Bowman school basketballers are having a chuckle these days at the expense of their coach, Mike Wentz, who doubles as athletic director of Friendly House, and cager for the Rex Billiards in the Friendly House Senior league.

It seems that when Mentor Mike's Bowman heroes bumped West Fifth out of a tie for first place in the grade school Northern league Thursday, Mike promised them a reward.

So he took the Bowmans to see the Senior league games that night.

So the Bowmans all were there, looking on. And the game between the Rex Billiards and Siero Lunch was tighter than somewhat, so tight it went into overtime play, and the action was terrific.

And there went Mentor Mike into the fray. Now the Bowmans would see something.

They did. Play started. The whistle toed. And a referee's finger pointed at Mike. "Technical foul, failing to report," said the official. The Bowmans howled.

"Oh, well," grunts Mike. "It's the first time in 20 years anything like that ever happened to me."

Maybe Mike teaches basketball the way I teach golf, and Jim Weems says he teaches bowling.

Demonstrate everything that shouldn't be done, and all the pupil to do the opposite.

The Bowmans shouldn't forget, for a while, to report to the referee when substituting.

Add to your list of Richland county athletes winning their titles in graduation exercises at Jackland Army Flying School at Toccoa, Texas, next Tuesday, the name of Charles Swain of Lucas.

The former Cub cager, who later on his letter in basketball and baseball at Ashland college, will be as Lieutenant Charles Swain. He is a brother of Bud Swain of this year's Lucas team, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Swain.

MAPS PROGRAM FOR ARMY CAMPS

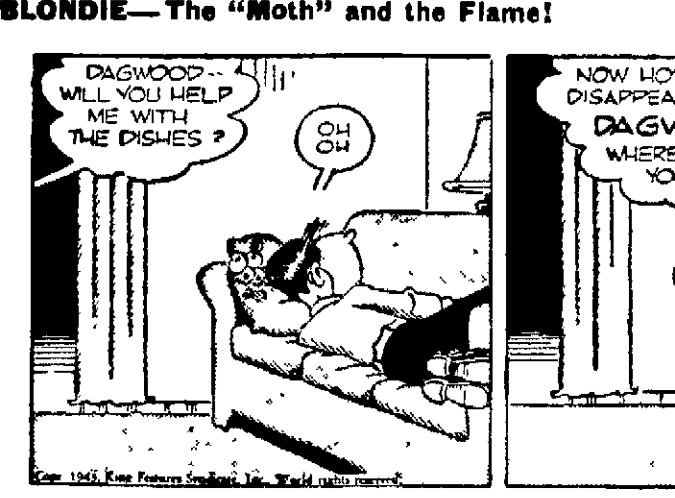

NEW YORK—(AP)—Georgia Sothorn, musical comedy dancer and comedienne, has set herself up as a one-woman committee to see that service men who want to put on their own camp shows have adequate material.

She has compiled a booklet of sketches and comedy bits which need a minimum of stage direction, lighting and costumes. Service men who write her in care of the Music Box Theater, New York, may obtain the material free.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Ghin Up! Carry On!

BLONDIE—The "Moth" and the Flame!

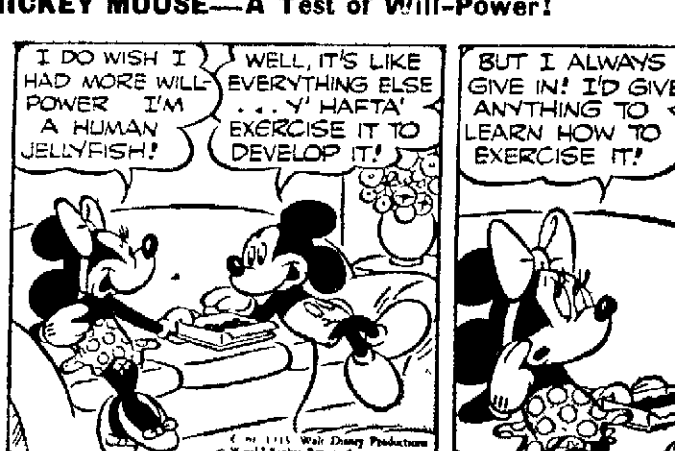

THE NEBBS—A Grave Situation.

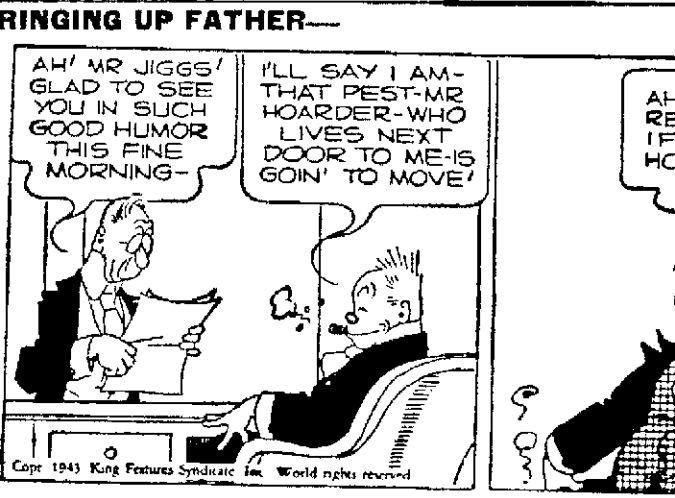

BRICK BRADFORD—On the Throne of Titenia.

MICKEY MOUSE—A Test of Will-Power!

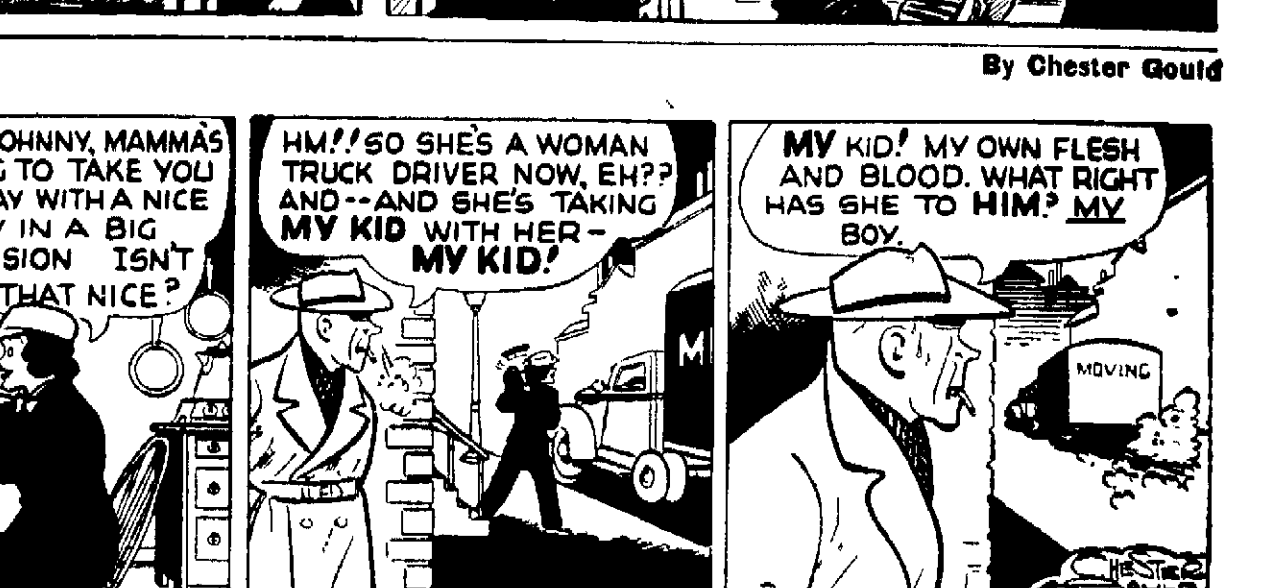

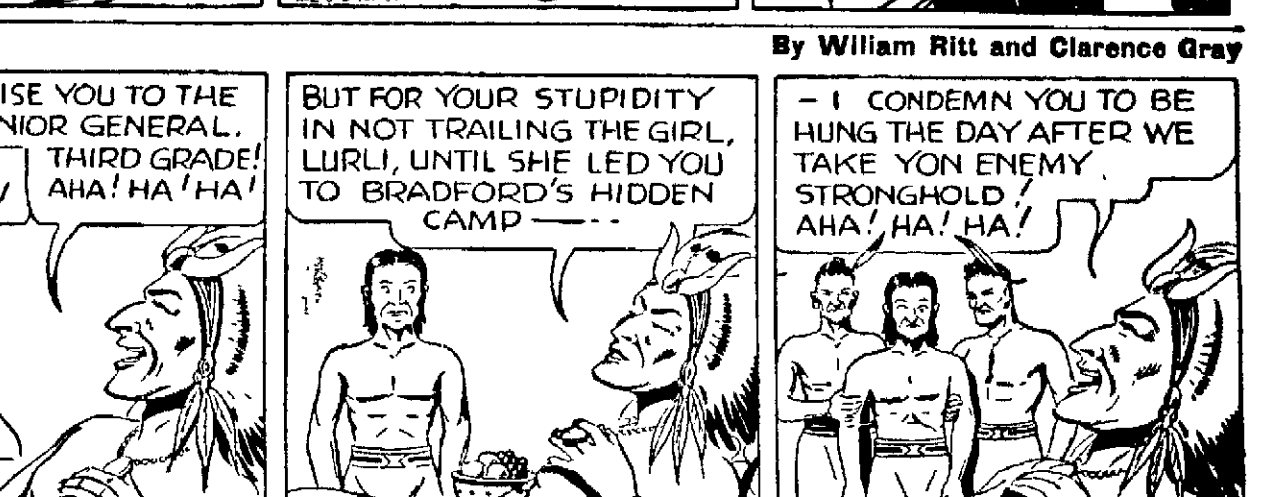

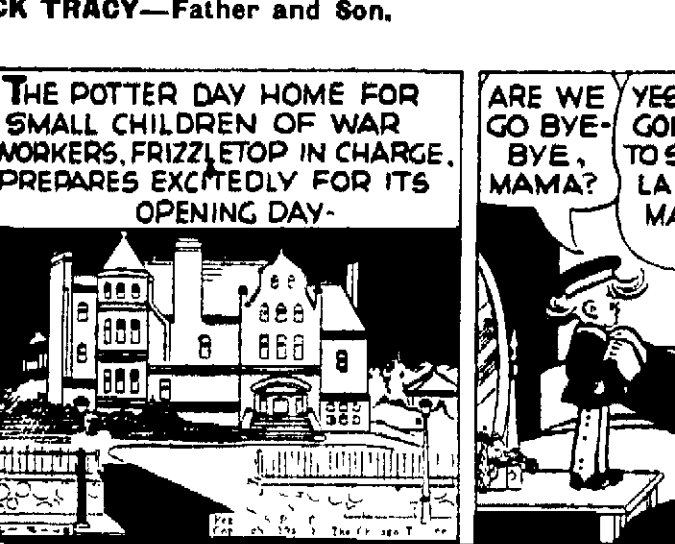

BRINGING UP FATHER—

THE GUMPS—That Was One on Mama!

DICK TRACY—Father and Son.

TILLIE THE TOILER

NOTICE

Today look for the final episode of "Tillie the Toiler" on the comic page in the regular section of News-Journal, where it will appear daily thereafter. Starting next week, in the Saturday supplemental green comic section of The News-Journal, the strip "Flyin' Jenny" will appear in this position. Watch for it next Saturday.
